ABOUT THE PROJECT

This established California technology company came to DIRTT looking to add some “wow” in its new corporate headquarters. Enclosed cubicles and private offices were replaced by a bright, open space with collaborative areas, “huddle rooms” for private sessions, and imbedded technology readily at hand. Eye-grabbing graphics on media walls animate the space and convey the company’s philosophy and culture, which has earned it multiple awards as a “best place to work.” Their new, more collaborative and exciting space also increased collaboration and directly impacted overall efficiency.
